Money changes situations, but it’s through relationships that true life change takes place.
ER pours into vulnerable children through nutrition, care and encouragement. Providing kids with one healthy meal a day dramatically improves their futures.

We empower women through life and business training, building self-worth as it has for the women in ER's Golden Hands Livelihood Program.

Through after-school programs, mentoring and school uniforms/supplies, we provide kids with the tools to stay in school and escape generational poverty.

By providing global and regional training events and coaching, we help develop leaders in many communities around the world.

EXTREME RESPONSE’S MODEL OF CHANGE

Establishing HOPE, OPPORTUNITY and SUSTAINABILITY through strategic partnerships and people-centric programs.

Orphans and Vulnerable Children
The children we invest in have one thing in common - a high probability of a negative life-outcome. This is because of extreme poverty, abuse, abandonment, neglect, poor living conditions and broken families. We can shift this probability through providing good nutrition, safe and loving family living environments, medical care, mentoring and educational access.

Empowering Women
Women are often the greatest influencers in their communities as they care and provide for their families living in extreme situations. In the areas where we work, young women are vulnerable to trafficking. By providing anti-trafficking restoration and resources, nutritional guidance, skills training and business support, we help these women grow in confidence, ability, skills and financial stability.

Educational Access
Many children drop out of school or don’t attend because they lack uniforms and supplies, extra help and or the nutrition to make it though the day. By providing school packs, early childhood education and after-school programs that provide tutoring, mentoring, nutrition and encouragement, we help them overcome these challenges.

Leadership Development
Equipping leaders through training, resources, coaching and community enabling them to lead their organizations with excellence, leveraging their skills to increase impact.

Relationships unlock life transformation in the most extreme places.
